

Who Said That?

Florida's quote of the day

| 10/27/2016

"It's not a brand-slapping exercise."

— Katia Bassi, a vice president at Aston Martin

First came Porsche. Then Armani, Fendi and Missoni. Now Aston Martin is the latest luxury brand to gun for a piece of South Florida's condo market.

The British car maker — known for giving James Bond his wheels since Goldfinger — announced Wednesday that it will partner with wealthy Argentine developers on a 66-story condo tower called the Aston Martin Residences at the mouth of the Miami River in downtown Miami.

Read more at the Miami Herald.